"Not chance of birth or place has made us friends..."

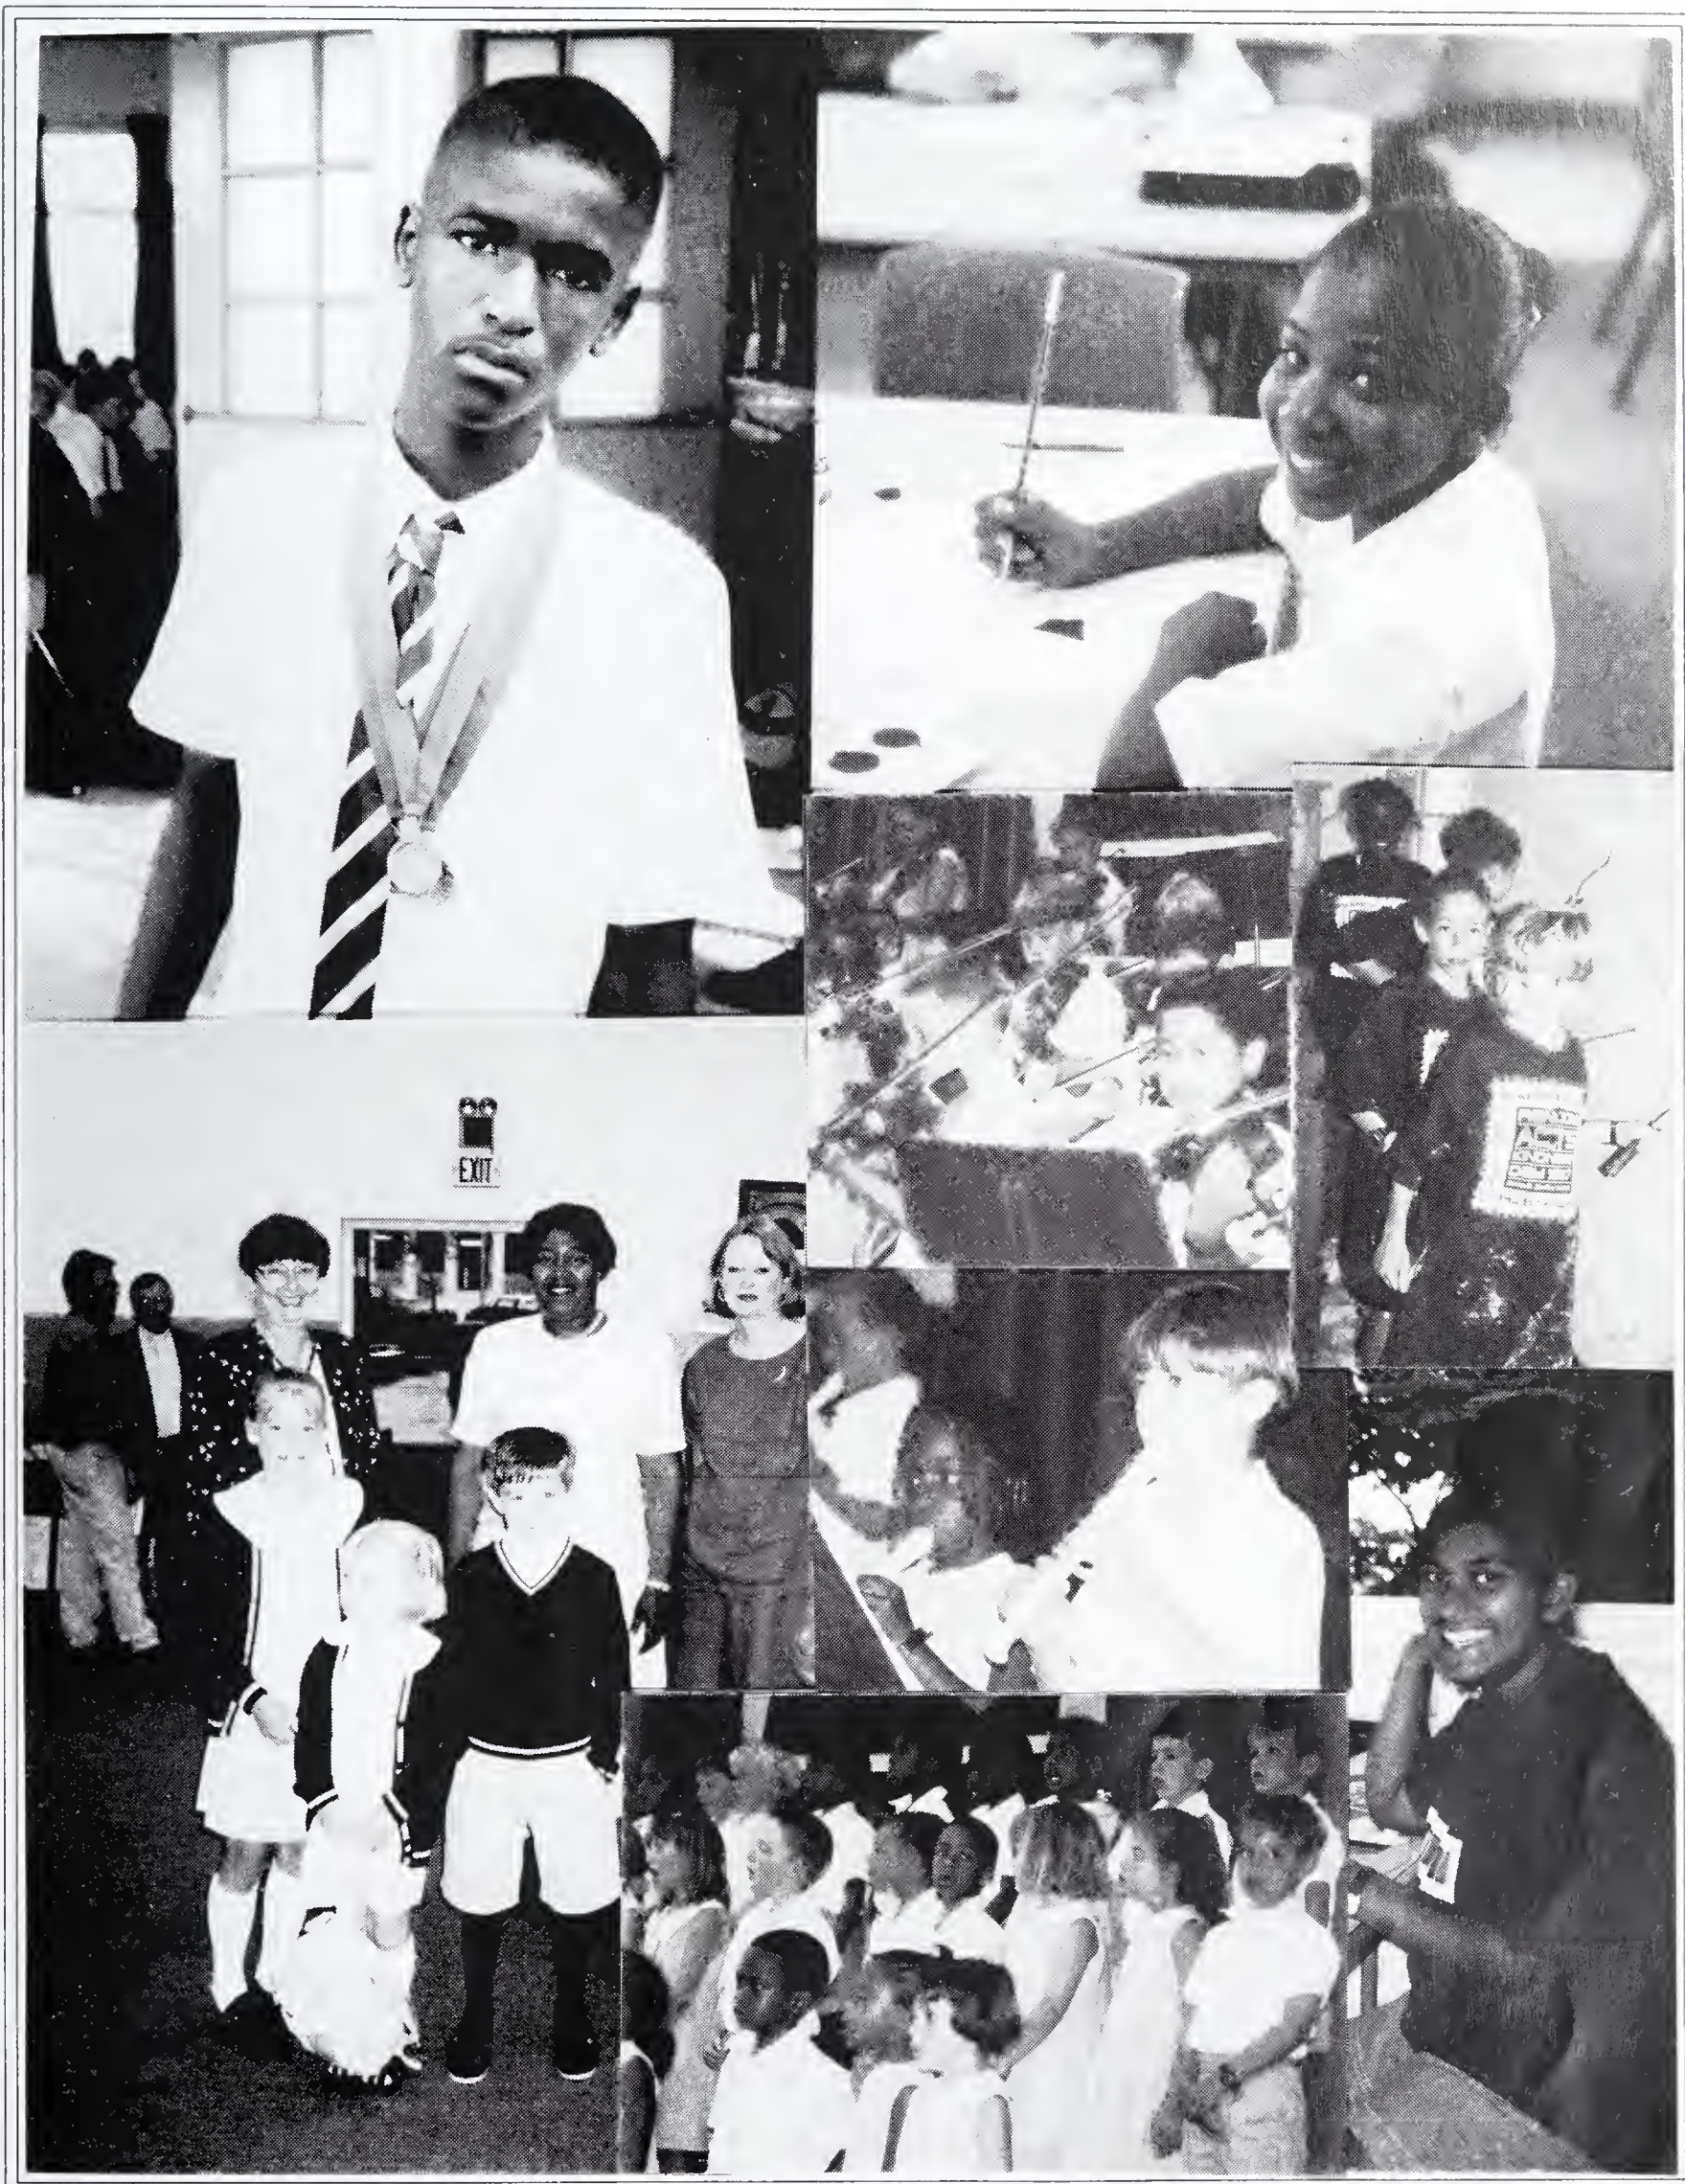

Being oftentimes of different tongues and nations...

But the endeavor for the selfsame ends...

With the same hopes, and fears, and aspirations."

Mr. Bernard Beacroft - nine years at the helm of Warwick Academy.

Born in Lincolnshire, on the east coast of England in 1937, as a young man Mr. Bernard Beacroft had his eye set on a career in the Criminal Investigations Department of the British police force. It was not until he was in university that his interests turned toward becoming an educator.

Prior to his arrival at Warwick Academy, Mr. Beacroft was a highschool history teacher (specializing in American history) and during his career he has taught in many places, including; teaching in Nottingham for eight years, and also in Detroit for the school year of 1970-1. For many years he has had a deep interest in both American history and writing, and in 1972 he published his first book (to be used as a textbook for British schools) which was entitled, "The Making of America - From Wilderness to World Power." The book was quite successful, selling 100,000 copies, and was in print for twenty years.

In August 1988 Mr. Beacroft first stepped onto Bermudian shores, making the huge leap from a sprawling British comprehensive school with a student body of two thousand, to the comparatively compact campus and tiny population of Warwick Academy. Though a seemingly formidable adjustment, Mr. Beacroft notes that the transition was made easy by the supportive staff, parents, and student body, that greeted him. He recalls with a chuckle, the most memorable moment he has had while headmaster of Warwick Academy. Just two weeks after his arrival, a welcoming party was held for him. He was told that the dress would be casual, and heeding this, he arrived at the party fitted out in a T-shirt and pink and black sailing shorts, only to find that the Bermudian idea of 'casual' was suits and dresses! Needless to say, some of the parents were none too impressed with the new principal, in fact later that evening one man came up to him and asked, "Have you met our new headmaster yet?"

While headmaster of Warwick Academy, Mr. Beacroft has been pleased to see the introduction of the Duke of Edinburgh scheme, and more recently, the annual "Random Acts of Kindness" day. He has also enjoyed being actively involved in the school Leo Club. In terms of academics, he has been particularly delighted to see the increased use of Information Technology throughout the school, and he stresses how vitally important it is to have computer skills, in this, the age of e-mail and the Internet. When asked, "If you could change one thing about Warwick Academy what would it be?" his immediate reply is that he would, "improve the toilet and shower facilities in the school." He would also like to see more "modern" classrooms (particularly in the science block), but is quick to add that he feels that the "old architecture and surrounding flora" are a very positive characteristic of the school. Though Mr. Beacroft has had to expel several students over the years, he does feel that for the most part, students do try to work hard and behave well. In his opinion there is a lot to be learnt from the harmonious way in which black and white students of Warwick Academy work together, and he views this as being one of the school's most positive aspects. Mr. Beacroft strongly believes that over the last twenty-five years Warwick Academy has played a key role in the easing of racial tensions in Bermuda, and he says that the students have taught him the valuable lesson that, "Just being at school together and living and working together is the best way to promote racial harmony and integration."

Mr. Beacroft describes the Warwick Academy of today as having undergone "profound" changes in a very short period of time. The school has changed from a public 11-16 school, to an all ages private school, and the process of making this transition has undoubtedly been the most challenging task he has been faced with, while at Warwick Academy. He is well aware that the rapid growth of the student body to 580 and the near doubling of the teaching staff, coupled with the curriculum changes, has produced added stress amongst students, teachers, and parents. However, Mr. Beacroft anticipates that the school will be much more settled by the year 2002. By then the primary school will have its own buildings, and a new gymnasium and music suite will have been constructed. He also expects that Information Technology will have become a part of everyday curricular activity, and is confident that the academic standards of the school will remain very good. In parting, he urges students to, "recognise that Warwick Academy is a good school, and that they have earned their place here," and encourages them to, "work as hard as they can to achieve their goals, seizing the opportunities that they have."

Reflecting on his career as an educator, Mr. Beacroft observes that the teaching profession has changed enormously; from the days when the teacher was authoritarian, and the students obedient, to the present situation in which, "the teacher has to respond to a much wider range of learning needs and social problems." However he is quick to emphasize that, "The profession needs dedicated, good teachers, willing to put in extra time with students," and says that in the midst of fluctuating society, schools need to remain as "stable" places of learning. When asked how he would like to be remembered after he has left Warwick Academy, he pauses thoughtfully, then says, "I hope that people feel that the school has developed well, and the right decisions been made." He also hopes that he will be remembered as being a headmaster that was, "fair and reasonable in the decisions and judgements he made."

During his nine years as headmaster of Warwick Academy, Mr. Bernard Beacroft has successfully guided the school through what has likely been the biggest period of change in its history. Following his retirement, he plans to return to England with his wife, and is looking forward to enjoying the "simple pleasures" of life. He intends on keeping very active, and plans to travel, visiting various friends around the world, and is also eager to begin writing again. Throughout his time at Warwick Academy Mr. Beacroft has served our school well, and for this we thank him, and wish him good health and good fortune, as he looks forward to entering a new chapter of his life.

By: Aisha James, 4 North.

March 27th, 1997 marked Mr. Bernard Beacroft's final day as the Headmaster of Warwick Academy, and the beginning of his retirement. On that day the members of the Board of Governors, staff and students honoured Mr and Mrs Beacroft in a special assembly. Mr Beacroft received several gifts of thanks, including pictures of Bermuda, a cedar pen and pencil set, and a lap-top computer. We all wish Mr and Mrs Beacroft the very best in the future.

Dear Reader,

I would first of all like to thank Mrs. Judd and her team of volunteer students for all their hard work in putting this Yearbook together. It is not an easy task but the results of their efforts are most rewarding.

Tradition is important and many alumni as well as the students of 1996-97 will take pleasure from these snapshots of their school.

This handbook should prove a significant one in that it covers a year of change. Apart from the fact that I arrived in April of 1997, there are plans to further develop the school in terms of buildings, the curriculum on offer and the way the school is run. These are all in response to the demands and expectations of a school back in the private domain. It will be interesting for all to try to spot the physical changes to the school, through the odd glimpses of the site in next year's edition.

The students will have a permanent record of school friends and teachers to reflect upon throughout their lives and also a document with which to entertain future friends and their own children wherever they may rest.

Here is another chapter in the distinguished history of Warwick Academy.

Enjoy it.

Robert Lennox,
Headmaster.

July 1997.

Dear Yearbook Readers,

We'll here we are back again with another Yearbook produced almost entirely at Warwick Academy. We have done all the computer graphics, the cutting and pasting, and the layouts ourselves. We have taken many photographs, and had many others kindly contributed by students, parents and teachers. Our work took many hours, and ran well into the month of July, but we are glad we persevered.

Thank-you very much to our generous Patrons, to Joanne Chisnall of Island Press, to Mrs Disa Manders, Miss Susan Rickards, and Mrs Jackie Caldwell for their photographic efforts. A special thanks to students Darren DeSilva, Melissa Flood, Ronald Furbert, Aisha James, Anjalie Nawaratne, Jahnika Simons, and Melissa Trott who volunteered many hours of their already busy schedules to help put this book together. We hope you enjoy our efforts!

Sincerely,

Susan Judd, Yearbook Coordinator.

The new headmaster - Mr. Lennox's first impressions of Warwick Academy.

"Distinguished, quite attractive, though in need of repair," were Mr. Lennox's first impressions of Warwick Academy as he viewed our school on a Saturday evening in November, 1996. Coming from The Bulmershe School in Berkshire, England, with a student body of 1300 eleven to nineteen year olds, there was quite a transition to be made to our five to seventeen years old, school of 500. However Mr. Lennox has adjusted well, and he credits the teachers with being both, "friendly and helpful." He had only one regret at the end of his first week, and that was that he had, "spent too much time in the office," and not seen enough of the pupils of Warwick Academy.

On the topic of pupils, Mr. Lennox readily admits that he was, "not always the best behaved pupil," but he sees this as a possible advantage, making him better able to, "understand why some kids act the way they do," than other educators who were always good students. He had one particular headmaster that caned him almost every week, and he recalls being shocked when this man pulled him aside, and told him, "You are a lucky b..... Lennox, because you will be able to do anything you want to do." He regards this statement as probably being the best advice anyone ever gave him.

Now having spent a full term as headmaster of Warwick Academy, Mr. Lennox has had a chance to interact with both the students and the teachers, and he is already beginning to plan improvements in an area that affects us all, discipline. Though he is quick to acknowledge that the present system of disciplining students is a good and firm one, his concern is that it is, "not entirely positive." He plans to review the methods of discipline used at Warwick Academy, and hopes to make pupils more involved in the improved system, with rewards and recognition being given to, "those who do things right."

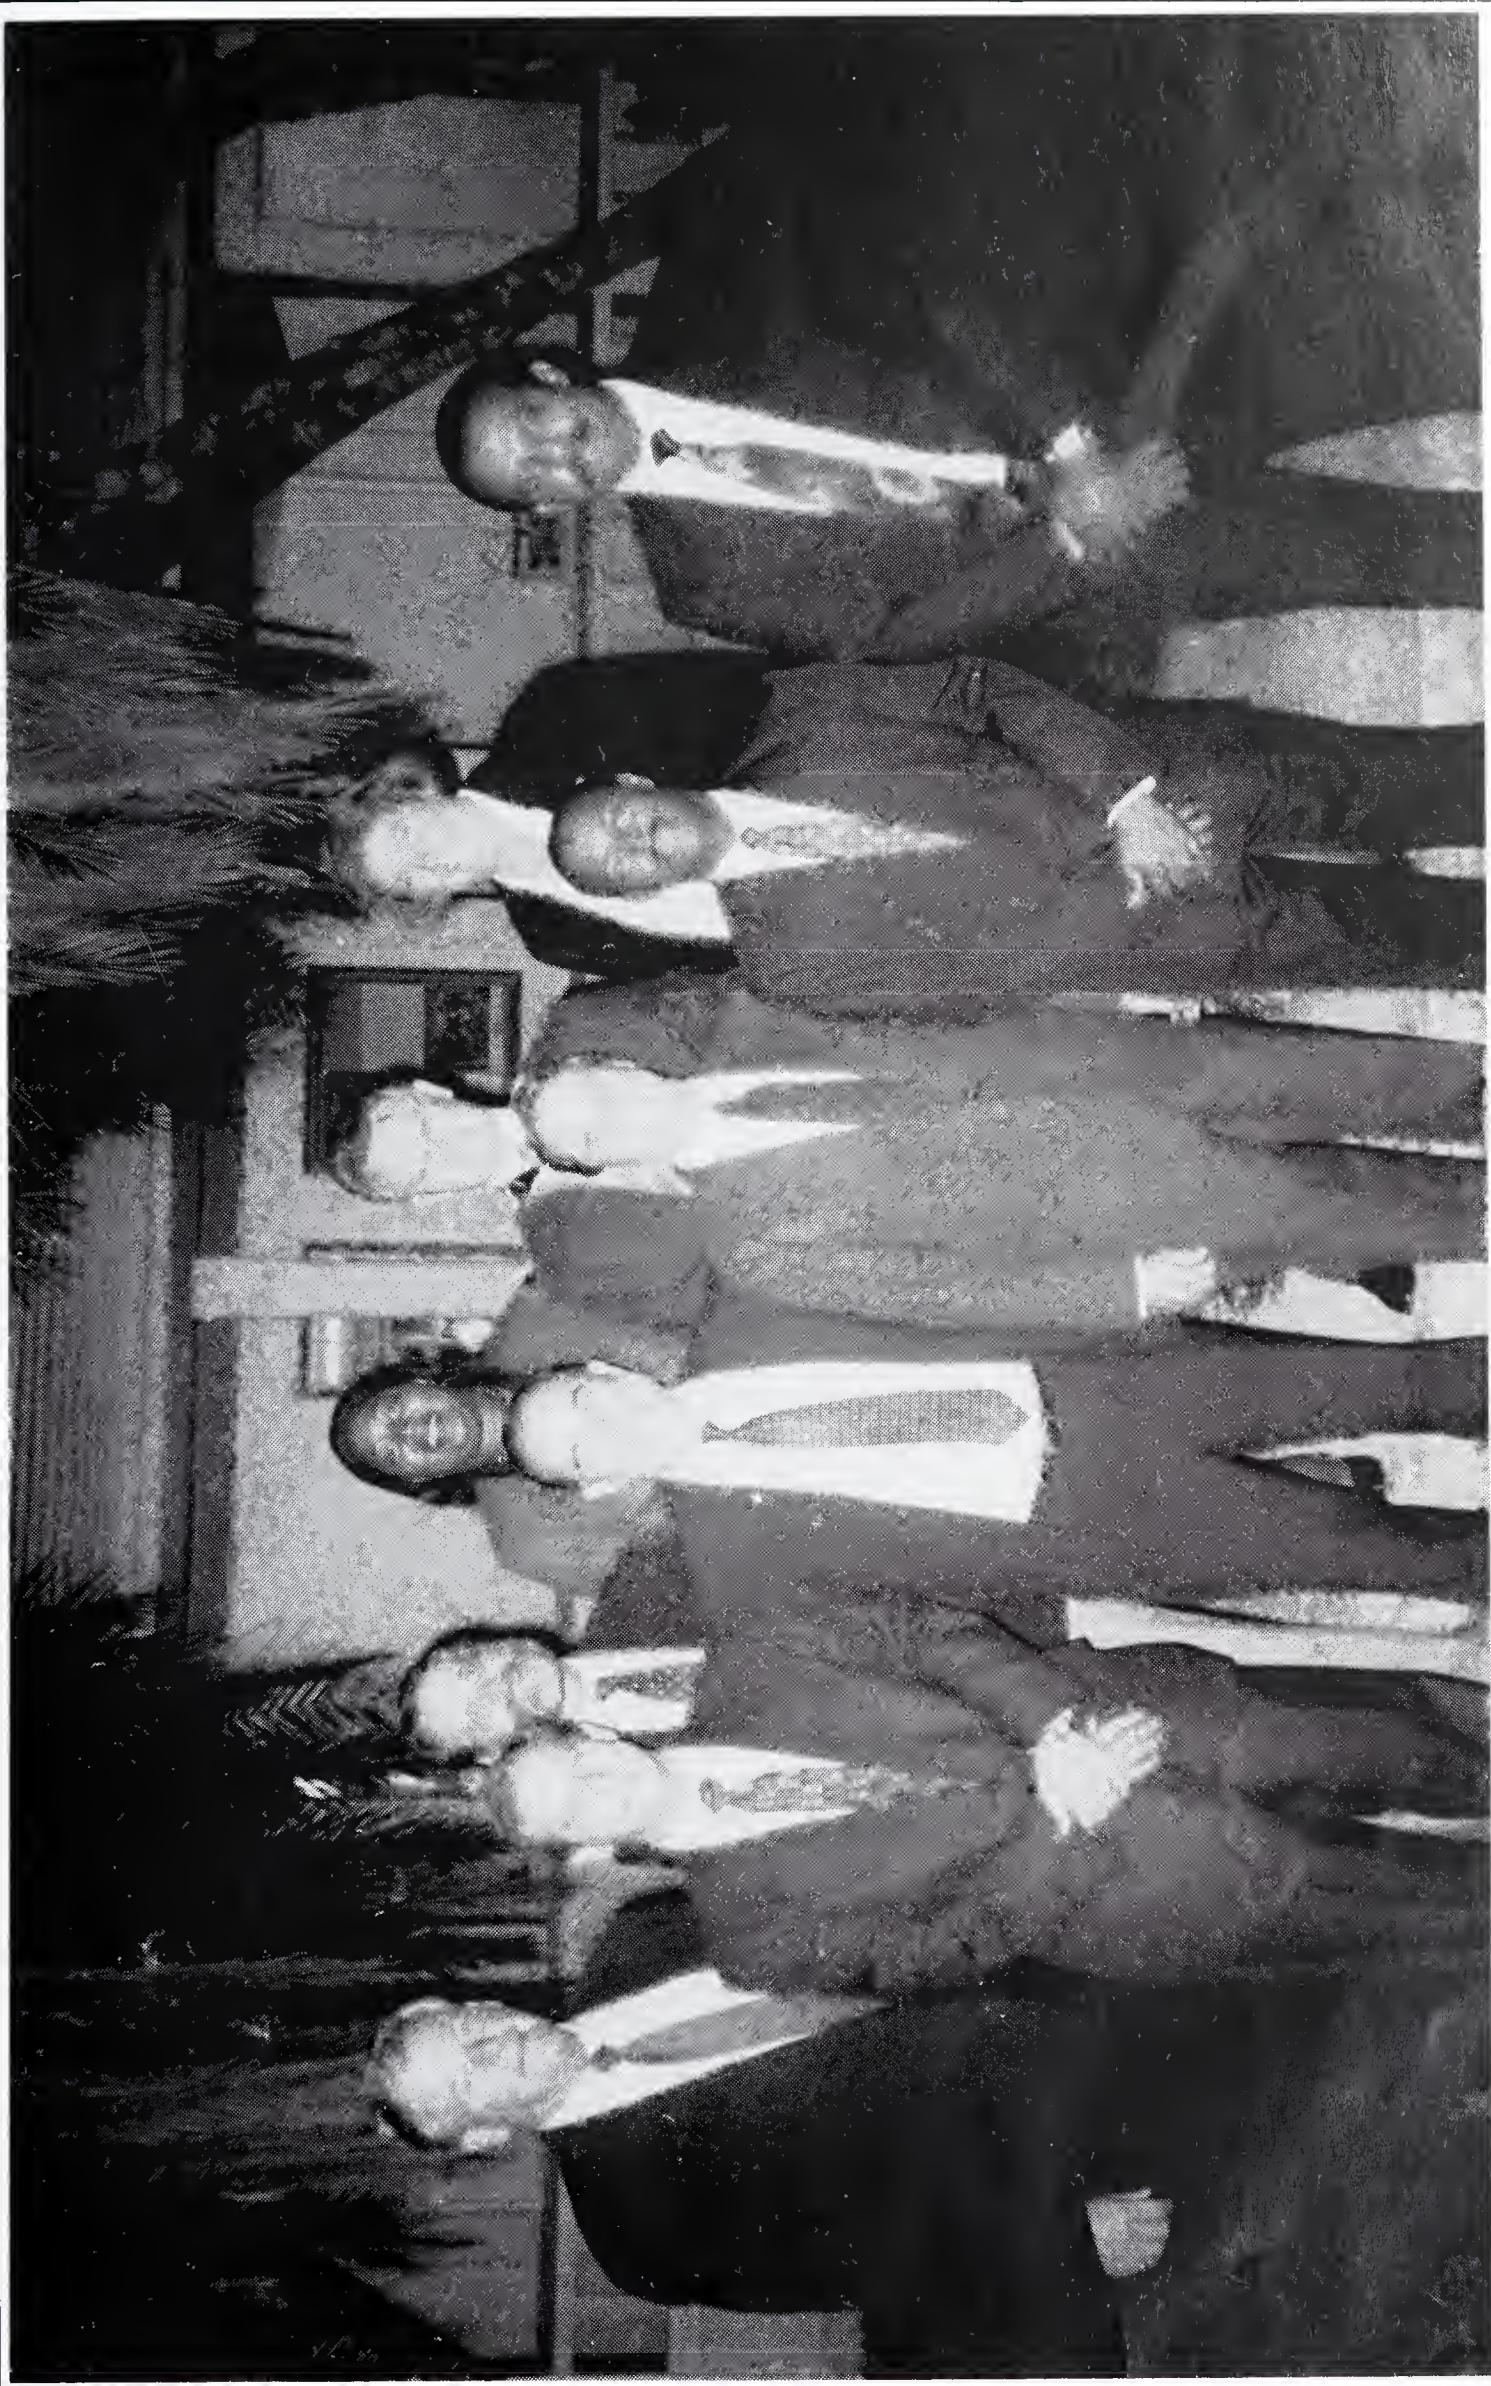

Mr. Lennox believes that this sort of positive discipline would encourage, "better and closer cooperation and understanding," between teachers and students, and he stresses that we can make Warwick Academy better by developing more school spirit, through increased student involvement. To this end, he urges the student body to, "join in with any changes," being made.

Mr. Lennox's message is one of greater unity amongst the school population, as we move towards the new millennium. Looking forward into the future, he is confident that under his leadership, Warwick Academy will develop into a school in which, "students consistently achieve the best that they can," whilst, "really enjoying," their time here.

PATTON HOUSE 1996 / 1997

Patton House had a very productive year.
Elected house and vice captains for the year were -
Nigel Burgess and Alana Ming House Captains
Jason Simons and Laura Santos Vice Captains

In the Primary School:-

Lawson Williams and Jeanene Todd House Captains
Justin Lavigne and Ashley Roberts Vice Captains

We continued our commitment to the Lorraine Rest Home as our adopted community project.

Visits consisted of Halloween Trick or Treats for the residents and staff and Christmas activities. The most important activities were those where we visited on the residents birthdays with a birthday cake, card and good wishes. Each student who participated in these events came away with a smile on their faces. A great job for all those who participated Well done!

In the sports arena we continued to work together with a strong emphasis on team work and participation.

We did well , while we did not always finish first we continued to produce good results.

Swimming 2nd Soccer 1st Netball 3rd Volleyball 4th Scooter ball 1st
Tug of War 3rd

Cross Country 1st Basketball 1st Hockey 1st

Senior Sports 2nd Primary 4-7 Sports 2nd Primary 1-3 Sports 3rd

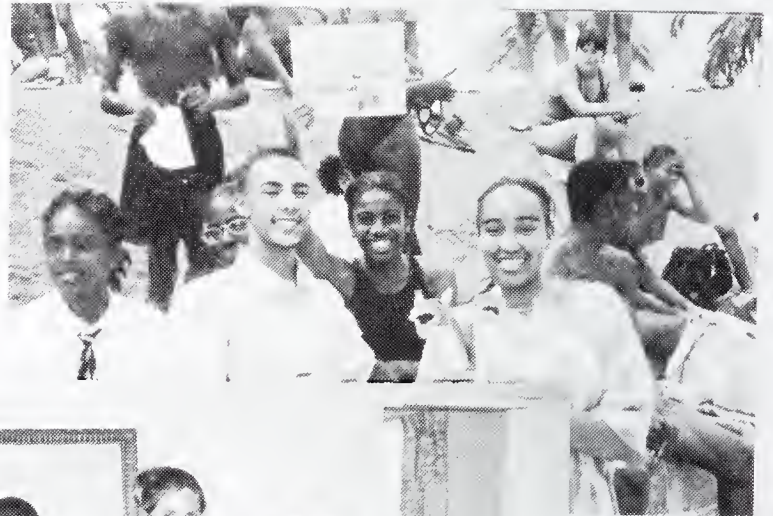

Overall we finished in FIRST place with 4050 with Morgan close on our heels with 50 points behind A great year!!!

In the declamation contest we finished second with great speeches by Alana Ming and Jason Simons.

The house spirit this year was commendable and this was self evident on sports day when we had green or Patton written on most available body surface.

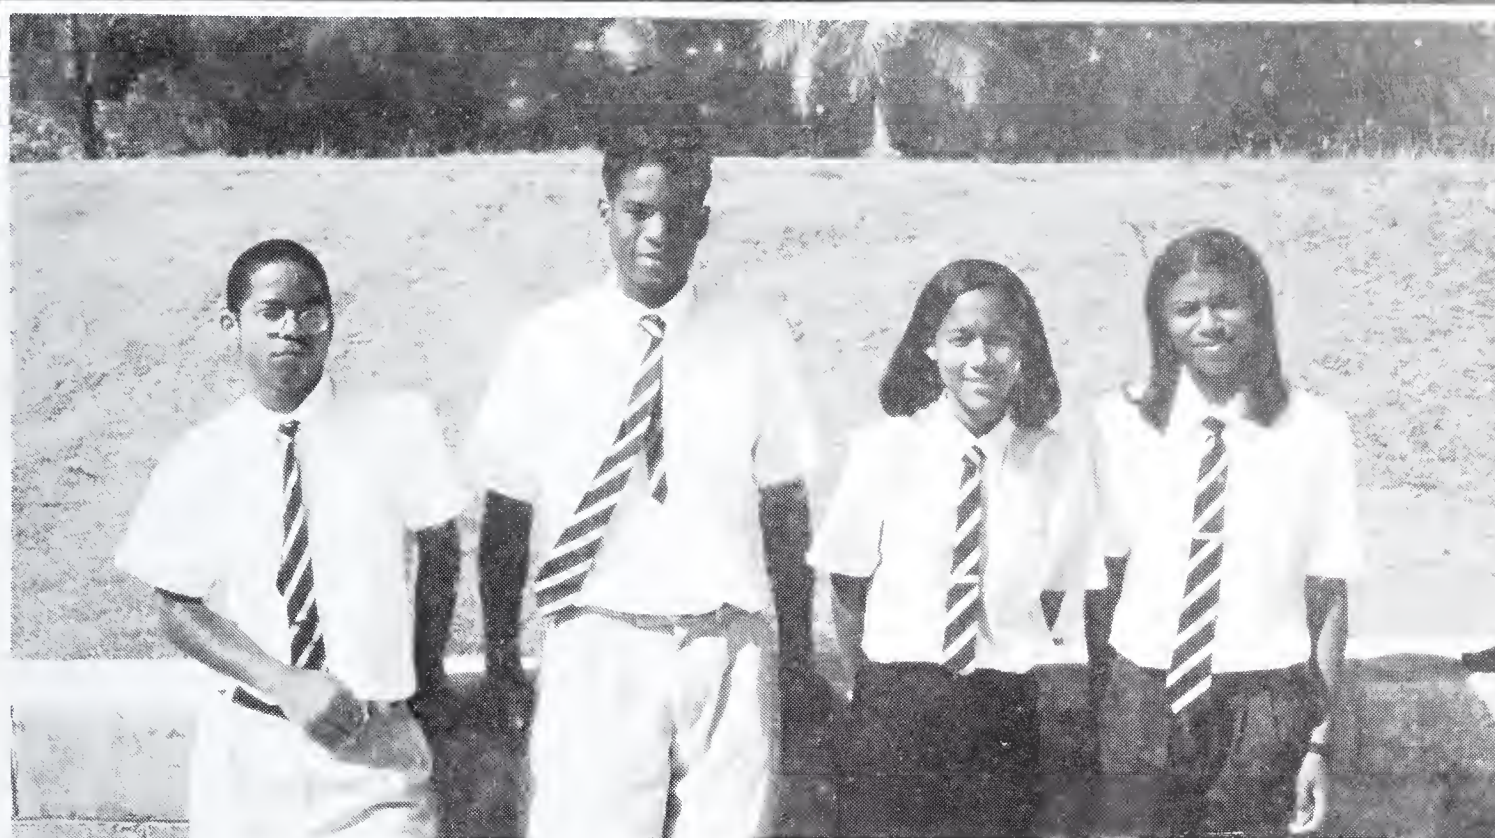

A great year Well done Patton House

Vice Captain Thaa Dill, House Captain Asaph Rawlins, House Captain Devika Gibbons, Vice Captain Kelly Grant.

MORGAN

Final Results:
Second overall.
Won swimming,
Won tug-of war.

Robertson House

Robertson House 1996-97. House Leaders were Shawnee Basden and Jay Smith, who both did an excellent job. The house finished second in the merits competition and third overall for the sporting events. There were some particularly good individual results, but it was the overall effort which was impressive. Without the participation of nearly every member, these results would not have been possible. We look forward to next year and improving our position.

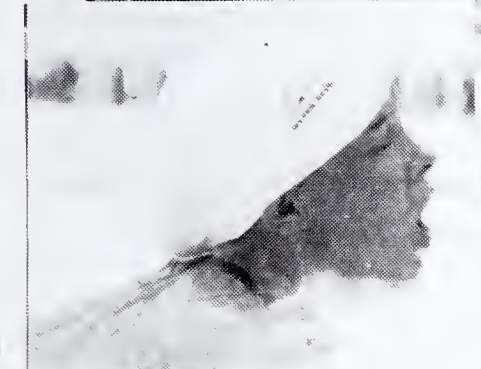

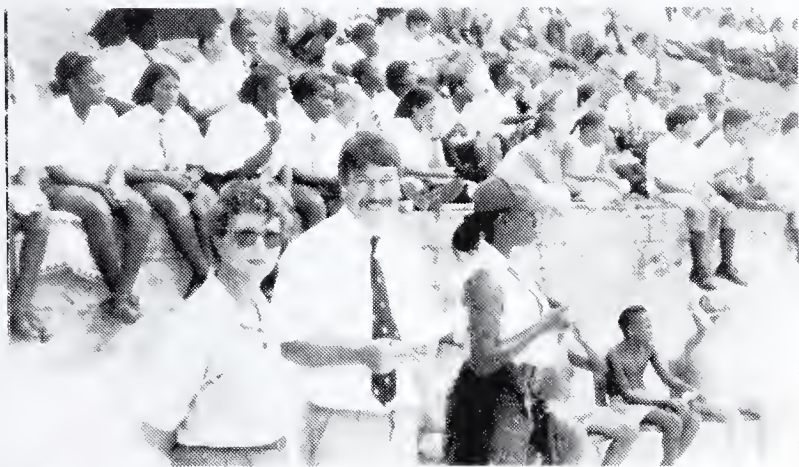

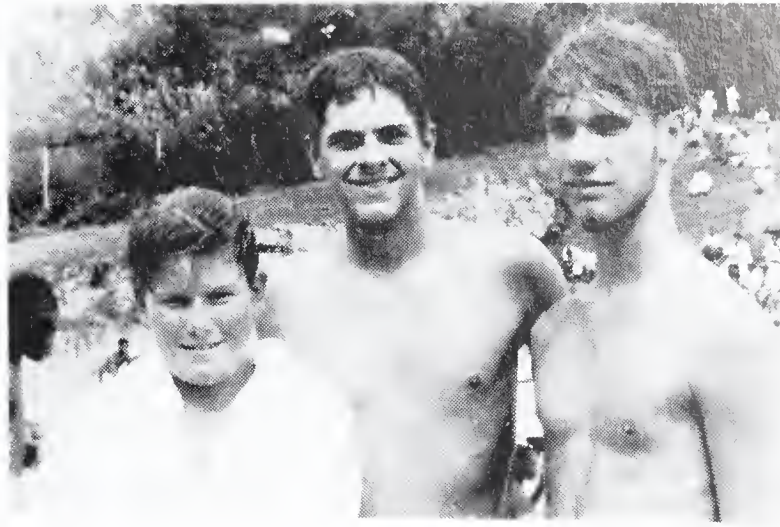

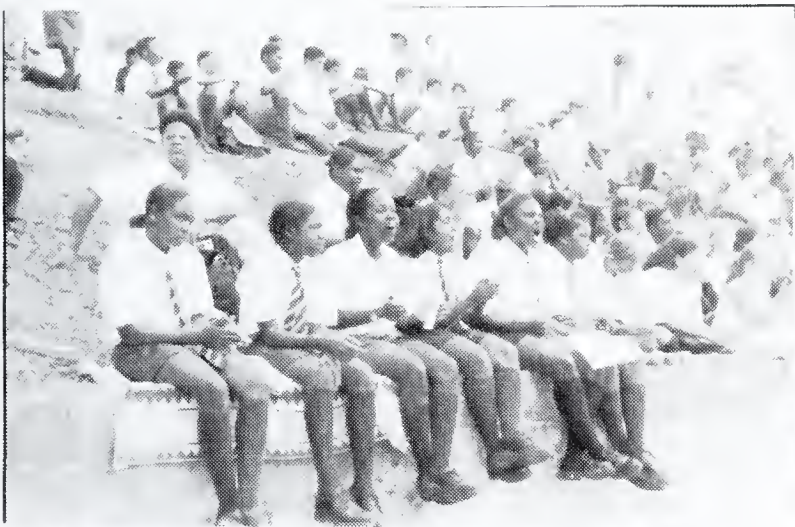

Mr. Hall

Rhodes House

Rhodes House 1996-97. House Captains: Shay Smith, Sheena Bassett. 1st Netball, 1st Volleyball, 2nd Soccer, 2nd Scooterball, 2nd Tug of War, 2nd Field Hockey were highlights of our interhouse competition performance. Conclusion: We're good at team sports but we need runners, jumpers and swimmers.

Mr. Smith

DRAMATIC ACTIVITIES

This year Warwick Academy put on three one act plays. Julian by Ray Jenkins is about vandalism and bullying. The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe is a two-man play based on the novel by C.S. Lewis. The Man in the Bowler Hat is a farce satirising melodramatic works and involving characters such as Bad Man, Chief Villain, Hero and Heroine. A new twist on the productions was taken this year as the directors were all senior students who had some experience in the theatre before. Adam Birch, the director of The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe, is a fourth year student who has been a cast member of the last four productions. Trisha Cross, of 4 Music, who directed The Man in the Bowler Hat has usually used her considerable talents back stage. Michael Roache is in his final year at Warwick Academy and has written of his experiences of directing Julian.

The actors of Julian were all from senior one except one primary five student. We were supposed to have a practise once a week on a Thursday afternoon, however, this only happened about half of the time. This was not a big shock to me. When we did have our practices, nothing was accomplished until about two weeks before the event was set to happen. With the help of Melissa Caldwell (5 South) and Mrs. Ingham they learnt their lines and where they were supposed to be and when they were to be there. Melissa had wonderful tips on how to say their lines, and they eagerly listened and mimicked. Our set was finished on time, and we practised with it. Our stage crew was also very efficient. They helped whenever they could and stage manager Katrina Smith (4 Music) even prompted the actors in the dress rehearsal and when they forgot their lines of the night (this was very rare, but did happen). On the night all the hard work paid off and the play went on with very few hitches and was very well done. I was very proud of our achievement.

The plays were quite demanding for the young actors, and in a short time, they reached a very pleasing standard and are to be commended. Back stage, students took on considerable responsibility and for the most part worked with minimum supervision. Mrs. Ingham and Miss Smith wish to thank all staff members and friends of the school who helped with the production in any way.

A SEASON OF MIXED FORTUNES AND PROMISE

The Junior Football Squad, showed plenty of admirable enthusiasm and commitment this season, but consistency, concentration and organisation are aspects of the game we all need to focus on and develop. Highlights of the season have to be the stunning 4-3 victory over Saltus in the opening game, with Eugene Calder getting a hat-trick. Unfortunately, the team hit a low, with four expensive errors in defence, which cost us a 1-6 exit in the "Knock Out Cup", away at Berkeley Institute.

Nevertheless, the season ended on an optimistic note, when the juniors showed great character and teamwork, when they were unlucky not to beat the exact same Berkeley outfit two weeks later, with a spirited 2-2 draw. This time errors in the attack cost us another three goals. Goes to show what self-belief and determination can achieve.

Well done to everybody who took part.

Mr. Hassen

Colours.

Lilac is the clouds at dusk,
A flower in a garden.
Lilac is a silky scarf,
A shadow on my bedroom wall.

Aqua marine is Bermuda waters,
A gemstone on a ring.
Feathers on a beautiful bird,
Aqua marine is a tropical lake.

Peach is a fruit growing on a tree,
Or a tropical drink from a special cafe.
Peach is a warm room with a glowing fire,
Peach is the sky at sunset.

White is the snow on mountains,
Or a new piece of paper ready to write on.
White is the roofs of Bermudas houses,
A string of milky pearls around your neck.

Red is the top of a rainbow reaching high,
Or maybe the comb of a rooster.
Red is the flowers on the ponciana tree,
Or red is a strawberry on top of a dessert.

By Rachel O'Grady

Colours of the World

Green is the leaves that sway on the tree.

Green is the soft short grass we
lie on beneath a shady tree.

Yellow is the sun that gives us each and every day.
Yellow is the stars that twinkle
in the night.

Brown is a worm wriggling
through the dark earth.
Brown is for bits of cedar
that smells wonderful when cut.

Pink is for four o'clocks that
bloom right on time.
Pink is for flamingos standing on
one leg.

Purple is for precious stones
we find beneath the ground.

What you see in Russell's Eyes

Black is a cat on it's nightly stalk
A thief trying to escape
An opal gleaming in the sun

Brown can be a place of roasts
a delicious delight
A wolf running after it's prey

Green is a giant oak preparing for fall or a dense rainforest alive with all it's sounds

Blue can be the sky quiet as can be
A pen skipping across the page

Red can be a sword that has drawn blood there is oozing from the blade
A cherry being plucked from it's place.

Colours of the World

Green is the leaves that

sway on the tree.

Green is the soft short grass we
lie on beneath a shady tree.

Yellow is the sun that
gives us each and every day.
Yellow is the stars that twinkle
in the night.

Brown is a worm wriggling
through the dark earth.
Brown is for bits of cedar
that smells wonderful when cut.

Pink is for four o'clocks that
bloom right on time.
Pink is for flamingos standing on
one leg.

Purple is for precious stones
we find beneath the ground.

My Rainbow

Black is the crow that swoops down.

A black cat runs across the road.
Or the black night.

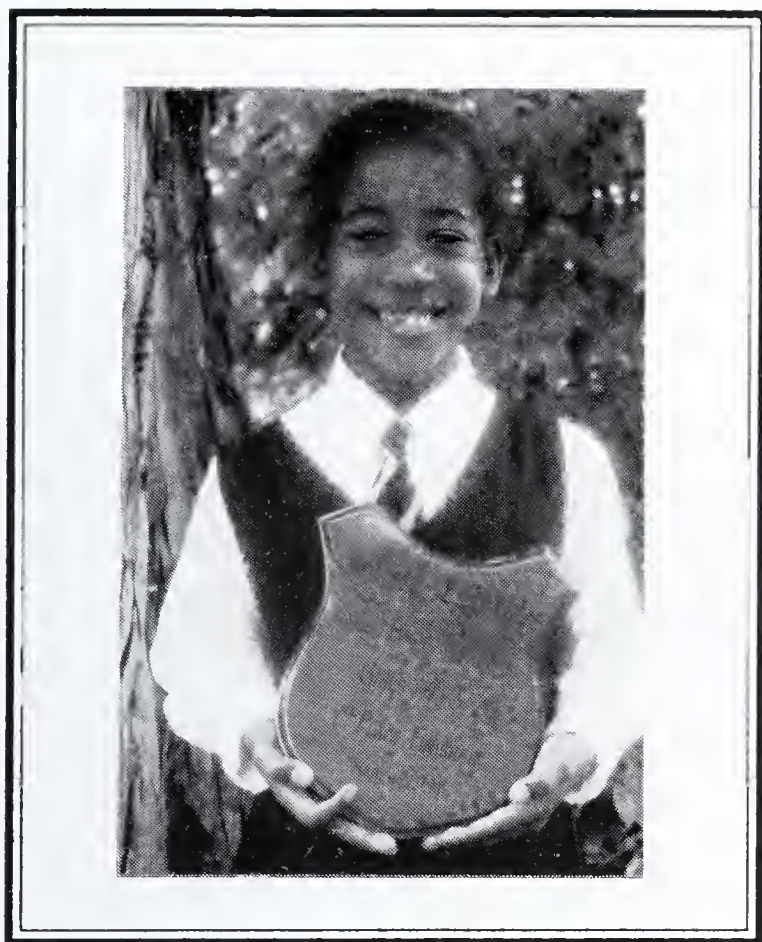

Blue is the colour of the sea crashing against the rocks
And the sky slowly going by.
Or a cool pool waiting your delight

Gold is the moon shining in the night sky.
Or coins jingling in your pocket.
The beautiful sun shining bright.

White is the puffy cloud that float by.
Or white ghosts haunting the night.
White is the snow that covers everything.

Silver is stars rolling around
For running down your face.
The fairies round and round.
